

Qualified European Patent Attorney Life Sciences and Chemistry Team - Biotech

About Us

We are a top tier firm. We hire the best people and do excellent work for the world's finest organisations.

We deal with all aspects of patents, trademarks and designs. We work for a broad range of clients from major international corporations through to individual inventors – we're at the forefront of cutting-edge innovations.

London is our international headquarters, we also have offices in Munich, The Hague, Hilversum and a liaison office in San Francisco – and we collaborate across offices to give our clients the best service. We endeavour to understand our clients' points-of-view to give them an excellent experience, and we work hard to create a friendly and innovative culture where like-minded people want to work.

We know that our reputation as a firm is based entirely on the quality of the individuals who work at the firm. That's why we've always been uncompromising in seeking out people who are not only at the top of their game, but who also share our enthusiasm and outlook.

The Opportunity

This is an opportunity for a qualified European patent attorney in the field of biotechnology to join a team of over 40 trainee and qualified attorneys.

We welcome applications to join us in either London or the Netherlands. Our ideal candidate will:

- Be a 1-3 years post qualified European patent attorney. Preferably, we would like either a UK or a Dutch qualification.
- Technically astute, with the ability to quickly understand any biotechnology subject matter. We would welcome candidates with experience of handling interdisciplinary subject matter such as bioinformatics and digital health.
- Ambitious and looking to develop their career and grow their practice.
- Be client focussed and have superb relationship building ability.
- Work autonomously and take responsibility for their own caseload.

You will be supported and helped to grow in this role, as necessary, by a close team of expert practitioners.

The Offer

The opportunity to join a creative and supportive team with a clear path for career progression with an inhouse training programme, known as Advance.

The role also provides the opportunity for agile working, flexibility and part-time working.

Working for a firm that lives and breathes its values and strives to create a positive working environment and culture.

Competitive total reward package.

If you're interested in this role, please apply now by sending an up to date copy of your CV and covering letter to hirings@kilburnstrode.com.